

Rhetorical Analysis: Understanding Persuasive Communication.

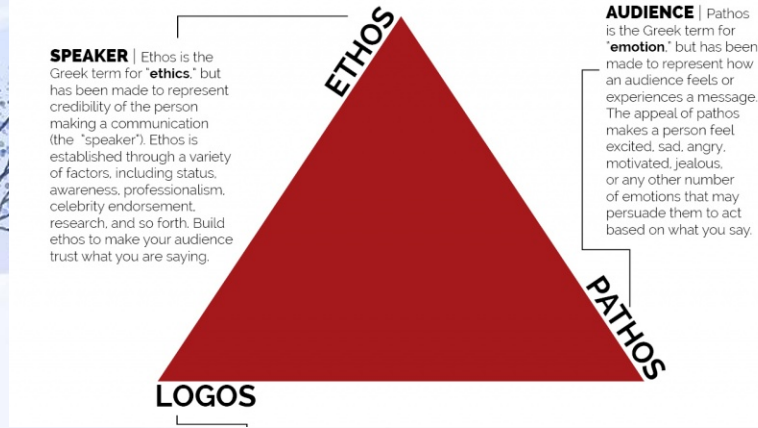

Mr. Syed Zahid Ali Shah
Lecturer, UW.

What is Rhetorical Analysis?

- A critical examination of how authors communicate and persuade
- Explores the strategies used to influence an audience
- Analyzes the effectiveness of communication techniques
- Breaks down the purpose, methods, and impact of a text

The Rhetorical Triangle: Core Concepts

- Ethos: Credibility of the speaker
- Pathos: Emotional appeal
- Logos: Logical reasoning
- Understanding how these elements work together

Ethos: Building Credibility

- Demonstrates the author's trustworthiness
- Established through:
 - Professional credentials
 - Personal experience
 - Reputation
- Tone and style of communication

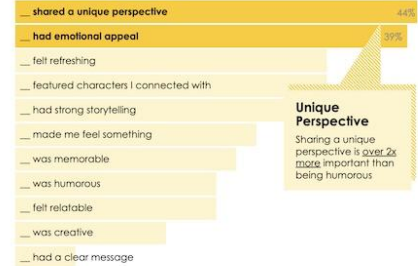

Pathos: Emotional Connection

- Appeals to audience's emotions
- Techniques include:
 - Storytelling
 - Vivid language
 - Personal anecdotes
 - Imagery that evokes feelings

For longer term growth, B2B ads should include an emotional component and share a unique perspective.

Drivers of "Is a brand I feel connected to"
Among Business Decision Makers
- Modelled Lift % (ratio between outcomes with and without ad creativity)

The ad _____. ["Is a brand I feel connected to"]

Logos: Logical Reasoning

TYPES OF LOGICAL REASONING WORKSHEET

Name: _____

TYPES OF LOGICAL REASONING

DEDUCTIVE REASONING	INDUCTIVE REASONING	ABDUCTIVE REASONING
Deductive reasoning starts with a general premise or statement then working toward specific examples, facts or evidence to support it. Deductive reasoning is always true .	Inductive reasoning starts with specific observations, facts or data and working toward a general statement to explain it. Inductive reasoning is usually true .	Abductive reasoning starts with specific incomplete information or observation then decide the likeliest general explanation for the data. Abductive reasoning is a best guess with the information you have.
All swans are white. Daisy is a swan. → Daisy is white.	Daisy & Danny are swans. Daisy & Danny are white. → All swans are white.	All swans are white. Daisy is white. → Daisy is a swan.
All the beans in this bag are white. These beans are from this bag. → These beans are white.	These beans are from this bag. These beans are white. → All the beans in this bag are white.	All the beans in this bag are white. These beans are white. → These beans are from this bag.

IDENTIFICATION PRACTICE

Directions: Read each example below and identify if it is an example of deductive reasoning (D), inductive reasoning (I) or abductive reasoning (A).

All dolphins are mammals.
Mammals have kidneys.
→ Dolphins have kidneys.

- Uses rational arguments and evidence
- Includes:
- Statistical data
- Scientific research
- Logical explanations
- Cause-and-effect reasoning

Context Matters

- Consider the broader context of the text
- Analyze:
 - Historical period
 - Cultural background
 - Social circumstances
 - Intended audience

Rhetorical Strategies

- Comparison and contrast
- Cause and effect
- Definition
- Description
- Exemplification
- Narration

Preparing for Analysis

- Read the text multiple times
- Take detailed notes
- Identify main arguments
- Highlight key rhetorical elements
- Ask critical questions

Developing a Thesis

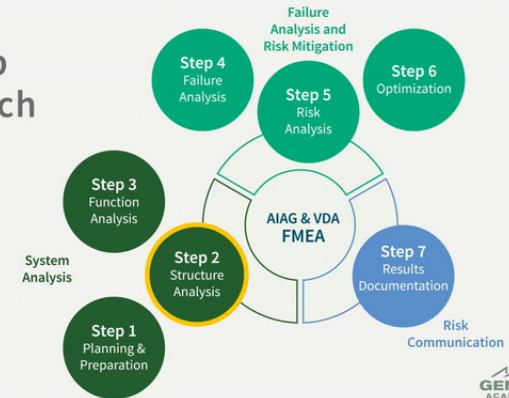

- Create a clear, specific thesis
- Focus on the effectiveness of rhetorical strategies
- Explain how the author persuades the audience
- Highlight the strengths and weaknesses of the communication

Structural Analysis

- Examine the text's organization
- Analyze paragraph structure
- Identify transitions
- Evaluate the flow of arguments
- Consider the impact of structure on persuasion

7 Step Approach

Communication Styles

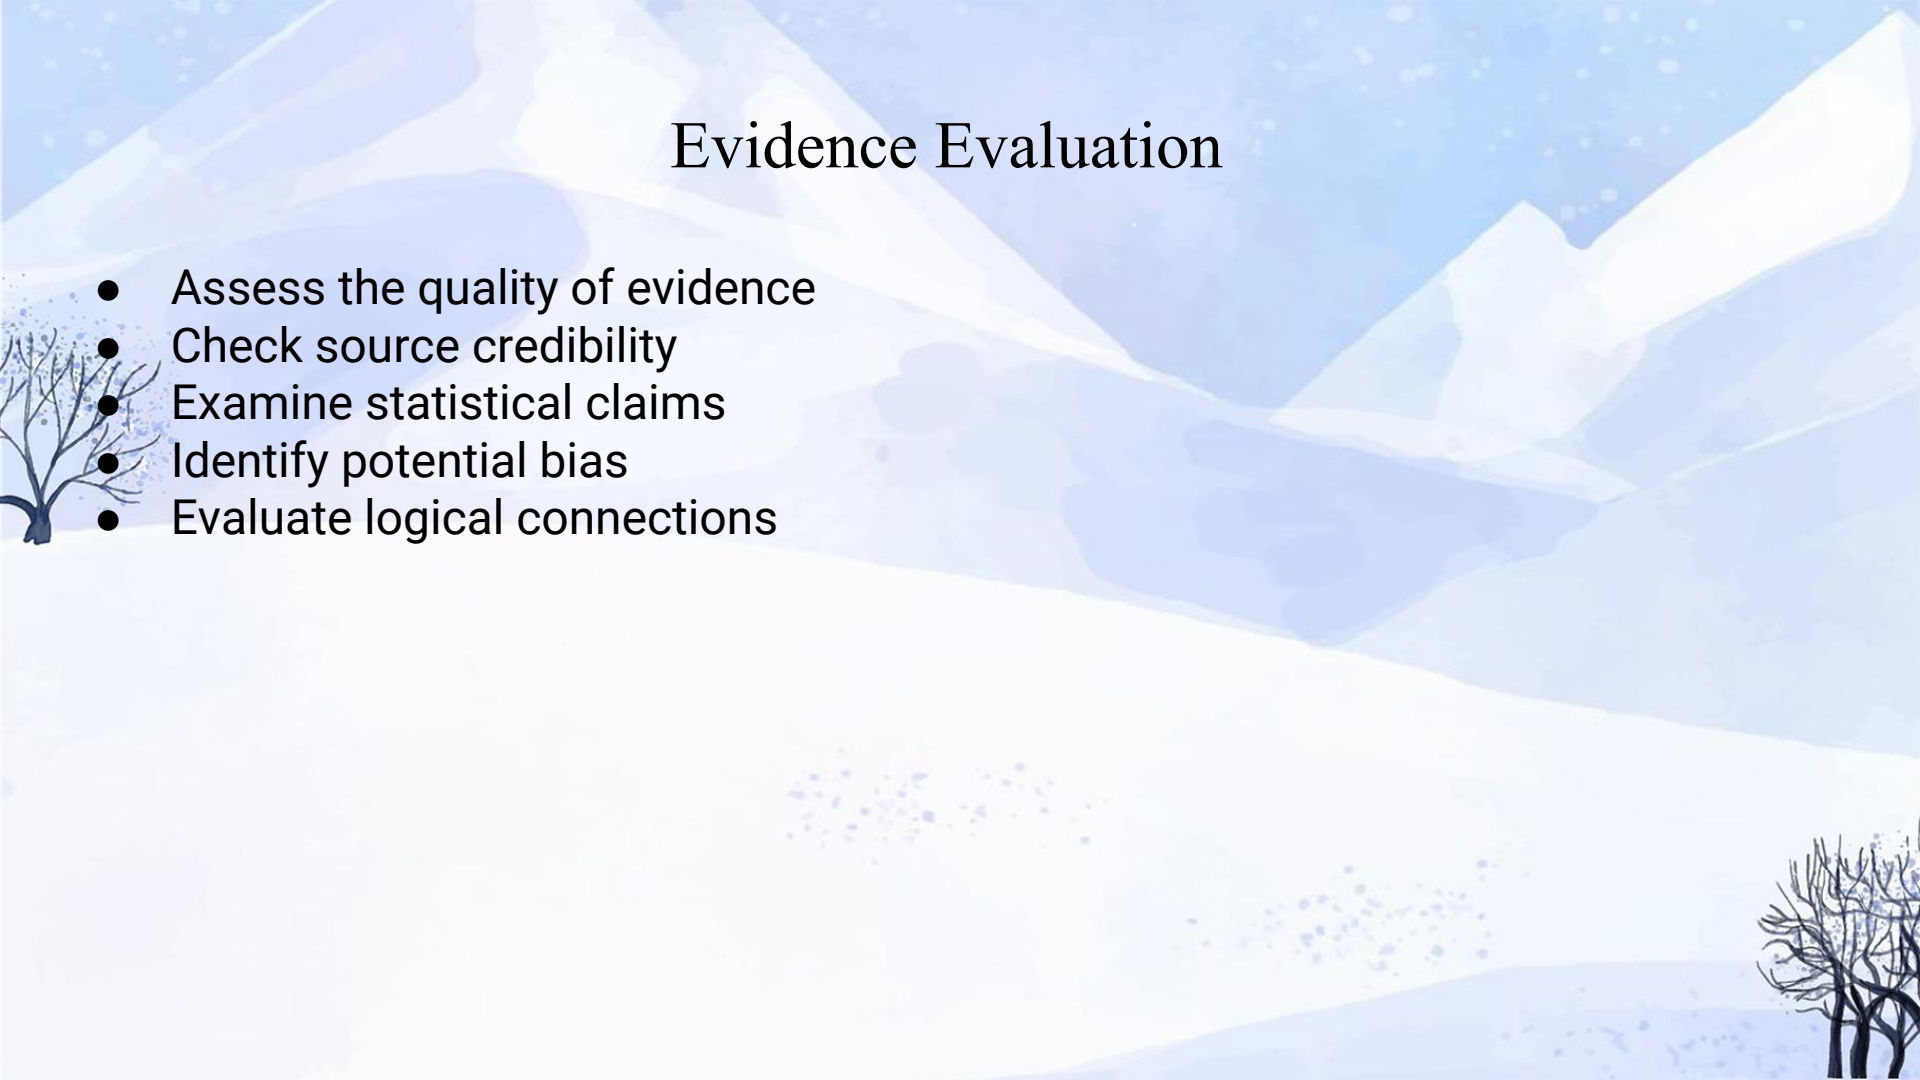

This Activity Includes

- Activity 1
 - Define 3 main communication styles (passive, aggressive, assertive)
 - Explains the body language, tone of voice and facial expression of each style
 - Introduces how each style can impact the people involved in the situation
 - 1 scenario for role play / practice
- Activity 2
 - Review of the three communication styles
 - 3 scenarios for students to role play each communication style
 - Follow up discussion question

Language and Tone Analysis

- Examine word choice
- Analyze sentence structure
- Identify tone (formal, informal, academic, conversational)
- Evaluate how language supports the argument

Evidence Evaluation

-
- Assess the quality of evidence
 - Check source credibility
 - Examine statistical claims
 - Identify potential bias
 - Evaluate logical connections

Audience Consideration

- Identify the intended audience
- Analyze how the text speaks to them
- Examine audience-specific strategies
- Consider cultural and demographic factors

How to Develop a Strong Business Communication Strategy

Create a suitable mission statement

Look at your target audience(s)

Use the right language

Consider the goals to work towards

Look at the key events and months in the year

Review your progress and make changes if needed

Drafting Your Analysis

The Writing Process

Prewrite

- determine audience & purpose
- brainstorm, plan, organize

Draft

- write a first draft
- Include main idea & details

Revise

- peer and self-assessment
- revise for organization & content
- edit for conventions

Publish

- create final draft
- presentation

- Create a clear introduction
- Present your thesis
- Provide specific textual evidence
- Analyze rhetorical strategies
- Conclude with overall effectiveness

Introduction Techniques

- Provide context for the text
- Briefly introduce the author
- State the main purpose
- Present your thesis clearly
- Outline your approach to analysis

Body Paragraph Structure

- Topic sentence
- Specific rhetorical strategy
- Textual evidence
- Analysis of effectiveness
- Connection to thesis

Paraphrasing: structure

Topic sentence: Introduction of the paragraph's main idea. Could be an observation to be interpreted, or an argument to be evidenced.

Keyword (old)

Signpost word

Keyword (new)

Main body in which the initial assertion is developed and explained

Self assessment can also develop skills which make a student more attractive to prospective employers. Employers value students with skills in self assessment because these types of skills are relevant to a wide range of employment contexts. They want graduates who can accurately assess their own competencies in performing tasks. Students who can do this are well placed to take on responsibilities and adapt readily to roles in work places. The value in developing these types of assessment can be seen to go beyond meeting immediate educational needs. Students who have developed an autonomous approach to learning are well set up for life-long learning which will continue throughout and beyond their working lives.

Conclusion to be drawn from the above points

@ncl_wdc
Writing Development
Centre

Common Pitfalls to Avoid

FIX THESE GRAMMAR MISTAKES BEFORE FINALS

1. Spelling mistakes
2. Run-on sentences (no comma before a coordinating conjunction)
3. Sentence fragments
4. No comma after an introductory phrase
5. Wordiness
6. Comma splicing
7. Comma misuse (inside a compound subject)
8. No commas around interrupters
9. Squinting modifiers
10. Subject-verb agreement

- Avoid summary instead of analysis
- Don't just list rhetorical strategies
- Provide in-depth interpretation
- Support claims with evidence
- Maintain an objective tone

Conclusion Strategies

- Restate thesis
- Summarize key points
- Evaluate overall effectiveness
- Provide broader implications
- Avoid introducing new information

Revision and Refinement

- Read your draft critically
- Check logical flow
- Verify evidence supports claims
- Ensure clear analysis
- Proofread for grammar and style

(Name)

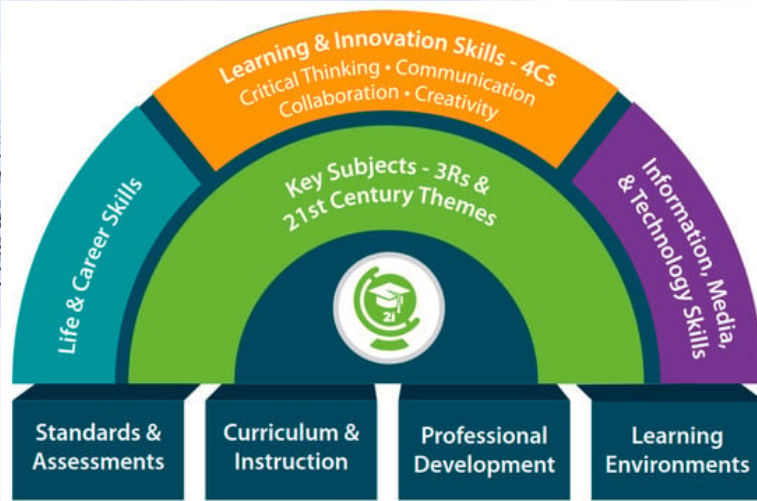

editing checklist

Teacher	Student	the date is on this piece.
Teacher	Student	I use punctuation at the end of each sentence.
Teacher	Student	I begin each sentence with a capital letter.
Teacher	Student	I always capitalize the word I.
Teacher	Student	I have spaces between letters and words.
Teacher	Student	I don't have any unnecessary capital letters.
Teacher	Student	I have carefully read this to myself two times to make sure I did not skip words and that it makes sense.
Teacher	Student	I have carefully read this to someone else one time to make sure I did not skip words and that it makes sense.

revision checklist

Teacher	Student	I used a "hook" at the beginning (sound words, dialogue, describing the setting)
Teacher	Student	I have a clear beginning, middle, end
Teacher	Student	I zoomed in on a small moment
Teacher	Student	I described the setting clearly

Final Thoughts

© 2019, Battelle for Kids. All Rights Reserved.

- Rhetorical analysis is a skill
- Requires practice and critical thinking
- Helps understand complex communication
- Develops analytical and writing abilities
- Applicable across multiple disciplines